THE UNIVERSITY OF CHICAGO

An aerial photograph of a city grid, likely New York City, showing a proposed transit route. A red line is drawn across the grid, starting from the bottom left and extending towards the top right. The line follows a path that is mostly straight but includes several turns and segments that appear to be under construction or in planning. The surrounding area is filled with a dense grid of streets and buildings, with some areas appearing more developed than others. The red line is a prominent feature, indicating the proposed route of a new transit line.
